Via: Renaissance Troll I spoke to Osprey Games about how we can help with all the people who are currently stuck at home, either on government orders or because they help self-isolation. It seems that this is a time when everyone can use a little solo games! I suggested that we give away Dark Alchemy, as it has 3 solo scenarios... but it only helps people who are already playing Frostgrave. So in the end, we just decided to give away Frostgrave's rulebook too! Right now, you can go to the Osprey Publishing website and download both Frostgrave Rulebook and Dark Alchemy as FREE PDFs using the code: FGV2020. But that didn't seem enough for what was likely to be a long lock, so we're also handing out the first section of Frostgrave: Perilous Dark, which includes 3 more SOLO scenarios, as well as some tips on creating your own solo scripts. So if you've ever wondered about the game but weren't sure, here's a chance to give it a look! You can even try it out, in solo style, using scripts found in Dark Alchemy and Perilous Dark! And don't worry - Frostgrave has always been a game about using any miniatures and terrain you have - no need to buy anything new to start with. So, have fun, roll the dice, fight some monsters and see if you can survive. Then jump online to Frostgrave's Facebook page, Board Game Geek, Reddit, Lead Adventure or any other hangouts for war games and share your stories and photos so we can all take part in adventures. Good luck! P.S. Play Dark Alchemy first, Dangerous Dark is much harder! This is a great opportunity to start something new with your family or launch some great solo missions! I plan to read the rulebook a few times, but most of the new games I've received over the years, whether it's AN RPG or miniature games, are equipped with quick start rules. I usually start with them and then link to a set of rules as needed as I play. Also, I don't see an example of starting warbands in a book. Is there a link somewhere with some simple starting warbands for new players? Thank you!
